FRIENDS OF ROAD BONDS WIN AGAIN

Bowling Green Representative Again Takes Up High-Priced Time Uselessly

(By Associated Press)

Frankfort, Feb. 13.—Efforts of the opponents of the $50,000,000 road bond issue were renewed today to delay the measure. With the opening of the House, the session was delayed continuously by dilatory tactics and conferences on parliamentary matters. Proceedings were suspended for a time when the clerk engrossed the Nelson amendment creating a highway advisory commission. On the demand of Frank L. Strange the clerk was then forced to read a 1500-word amendment.

Finally, however, Strange's efforts to postpone action on the Nelson amendment was defeated 54 to 41. Most of the debate, however, centered around the amendment of E. A. Gullion, of Henry county, to exempt farm, real estate and machinery from liability under the clause allowing a five per cent property tax if ordinary sources of revenue failed to produce enough to pay the bonds. This amendment was defeated 53 to 39.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 15.—Like the House which was unable to finish consideration of the road bonds Tuesday, the Senate adjourned without completing action on the substitute for Senate bill 136, the Rash anti-evolution bill.

When the Senate met, Senator Rash made a strong speech in favor of this measure. He declared that it was necessary, in order to protect the college boys and girls and students in the high and common schools from teachings which might undermine their belief in religion. He said that the bill was not aimed at one particular university, but at this sort of teaching, wherever it was taking place. "Wherever the Bible is set at naught, nations have gone to decay," he added. "We do not even mention the word 'evolution' in this substitute. We want to send the word out from here to the parents of Kentucky that they may send their children to school with assurance that nothing will be taught to undermine their faith."

A motion by Senator Daugherty to table the bill, lost 22 to 11. Speaking on the main bill, Senator Stoll said that he had attended the common schools and the University of Kentucky, and that, instead of being taught a disbelief of religion, his faith in God had been strengthened by the instructions he received there.

In vigorous language, he said that the anti-evolution movement is an "unwarranted and preposterous effort to legislate where it is not needed."

"Reading from the existing statutes of Kentucky, Senator Stoll showed that the state now has a law which prohibits immoral and infidel books and instruction. 'I believe that God in His infinite wisdom made the world. Evolution means progress. God didn't say that he made the world perfect in one day. I prefer to believe that He is still improving mankind,' he added.

When Senator Stoll sat down, Senator Lee shouted something that sounded like "Go it for money." The Senator from Fayette was on his feet at once, and said that he did not propose to be made a monkey of by any one. Lieut. Gov. Ballard at once decided that the Senator from Owen was out of order.

Senator Frank Daugherty then spoke against the bill. He read a letter from the Rev. Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary of Louisville, who was generally regarded as the author of the substitute, in which Dr. Mullins was quoted as saying that he was now opposed to any bill which had the word "theory" in it.

Senator Brig Harris spoke for the bill and Senator Hiram Brock for a careful consideration of the measure, the latter not indicating how he would vote on it. Adjournment was taken before a vote could be had.

Road Bill Saved

After an all-day battle over a portion of the twenty-nine amendments offered to the Moss-

Meyers $50,000,000 road bonds submission bill, Frank L. Strange, chairman of the committee on public roads and highways, who has been leading the fight against the bill, moved to table the bill and amendments, which, if carried, would have defeated the measure for the present session. On vote being taken, generally considered a test of strength on the bill, his motion was defeated 57 to 35. The detailed vote, refusing to lay the roads bond issue on the table, was as follows:

To table: Bennett, Bickett, Bolling, Boyd, Brown, Dixon, Dorsey, Drury, Duffy, Ellis, Mrs. Flanery, Frazier, Gossett, Hadden, Hamilton, Howard, Jeter, Light, Lisle, Minor, S. H. Moore, Payne, Quarles, Saunders, Stewart, Strange, H. V. Thompson, D. D. Thornberry, Toll, Coombs, Vest, Walker, Watkins, Wheeler, Willis—35.

Against tabling: Adams, Amos, Bosworth, Bowman, Button, Cary, Chandler, Clark, Cross, Cuniff, Day, Denton, Duncan, Fultz, Green, Gullion, Harvey, Holder, Hopkins, Huntsman, Jennings, Jones, Kelly, Lane, Lawrence, Lewis, May, Meyers, Miller, K. C. Moore, Murrah, Muster, McCaw, McGuire, McMurtry, E. E. Nelson, C. A. Nelson, Newman, O'Donovan, Oney, Park, Pierce, Powell, Rice, Scott, Simons, Skaggs, G. W. Smith, I. D. Smith, G. F. Thompson, Tinsley, Truesdell, Trumbo, Vanhoose, Waggoner, Wallen, Wicker—57.

When the house met the special order being called, Charles A. Nelson, of Hardin county, brought in the first amendment proposing the naming of an advisory and supervisory commission of twelve, one from each congressional district, and one from the state at large, to have charge of the spending of the money and the sale of the bonds.

The commission as suggested by Mr. Nelson had the following names:

Robert W. Bingham, Louisville, (state at large); Clem S. Funn, of Marion, first district; Frank D. Rash, of Madisonville, (second district); Gen. William Seibert, of Bowling Green, (third district); Harry A. Sommers, of Elizabethtown, (fourth district); William Heyburn, of Louisville, (fifth district); Polk Laffoon, of Covington, (sixth district); John Stoll, of Lexington, (seventh district); George Welch, of Danville, (eighth district); T. A. Fields, of Ashland, (ninth district); Henry LaViers, of Paintsville, (tenth district); J. Z. Ogden, of Somerset, (eleventh district.) Six are Democrats and six Republicans. The board is to hold for four years, its successors to be named by the governor.

The amendment provides that every member must be a resident of the state for at least six years and neither directly nor indirectly interested in the sale of road construction, nor in road contracts. No contract for sale of bonds or for construction of roads is to be valid unless approved by a majority of this commission.

Following this amendment 28 others were submitted, before the previous question was moved on the amendment. The house voted to substitute the name of James Gale, of Carrollton, for that of Polk Laffoon, on motion of Representative Oscar West.

By a vote of 44 to 44 the house failed to adopt an amendment by G. C. Waggoner, of Scott county, substituting the name of Rhodes B. Thomas, of Georgetown, for that of John Stoll, but at the afternoon session this was reconsidered, and prevailed. The name of Emery Dent, Bowling Green, was substituted for that of General Seibert, and the name of J. A. Cheek, of Danville, for George W. Welch.

Several other substitutions proposed were voted down.

EX-MAYOR WOODS SPEAKS TONIGHT

Law Enforcement will be the subject of an address by ex-Mayor Clarence E. Woods at a union prayer meeting service of the churches of Richmond at the First Christian church tonight.

STEARNS DENIES HE OWES SINGLE CENT

(By Associated Press)

Nicholasville, Ky., Feb. 13.—James B. Stearns, former postmaster and former editor and one of the best known men in Central Kentucky, today denied he is guilty of any irregularities in connection with his administration of the postoffice. He said "the discrepancy is all made up. I do not owe the government one nickel." He is under bond to answer to the federal court in connection with an alleged shortage of $1,400 in postoffice funds.

STATE SOPHS PLAY MADISON TONIGHT

Madison Hi has one of the toughest nuts of the season to crack in her gymnasium Wednesday night when she meets the Kentucky State Sophomore basketball five. The visiting sophs have a very strong team which will force Madison to give their best to win. The sophomore five is the leading class team at State. They have won victories over strong Central Kentucky teams, including one over the Lawrenceburg independent team. These second year men play fast ball, so fast indeed that Madison had better feel their way slowly or else they will hit a stumbling block.

Coach Lassiter can provide a team that will keep the Sophs pretty busy at any rate. He is expected to start the same men against Wednesday's rivals that he started against Crab Orchard. These men are E. Stone, center; T. Stone and Clouse, forwards; and Reeves and Hurst, guards. The local fans are acquainted with the fine work shown by these five men already this season and are expecting this good work to continue this big game. Passing is Madison's drawing card. They did not do so well at it last Saturday but did not need to. A return to good passing form will help the locals more than anything. Although Madison seems to have mastered shooting fairly well, they missed several clutch shots in last Saturday's game. Blevins who has been playing regular at center since the first two games will probably be sent in to divide time with E. Stone.

The Madison girls' team will probably play the Madison first team before the big game. Madison has another game in the latter part of the week with Stanton Academy.

Mrs. Partin was at home with her children and a sister-in-law, who also was shot and seriously wounded. Mrs. Partin was killed instantly by a shot that pierced the thin walls of the house.

The three men then entered the house, but when they saw the women had been shot, they fled. They were captured in Tennessee Oscar King and Henry Overton will be tried later. The men said they were fired on first by parties concealed near the Partin home.

DR. REID HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

The Lexington Herald had the following about a popular former local druggist Wednesday:

Sam C. Reid, druggist of Midway, Ky., will be arrested on a charge of transporting whisky as soon as the warrant can be placed in the hands of a deputy marshal, it was stated at prohibition headquarters yesterday. A warrant was issued by Commissioner Chas. N. Ward yesterday. Reid is charged, attempted to send two pints of red whisky in unlabeled bottles from his drug store in Midway to Versailles on the night of January 12. The liquor was seized by prohibition authorities while was in the possession of the drug clerk. The clerk who delivering the liquor was not charged with any offense. Authorities stated yesterday that they believed Reid would surrender for an examining trial without waiting for the service of a warrant.

Who's Getting It?

Washington, Feb. 15.—Great Britain's principal distilling centers quadrupled their shipments of whisky to the United States in 1921. America's thirst attracted $2,000,000 worth of the British output. Much of it came from liquor plants at Glasgow. This was shown today by a cablegram from American Consul General Skinner at London, who said that last year's shipments of whisky to America far exceeded the figures of preceding years. In 1921 the shipments from the five consular districts named amounted to only $500,000.

MAY GET TEAM HERE, AFTER ALL

McKinney Gives Option On Suitable Grounds—Little Money All That's Needed

More interest is being taken in the proposition to have Richmond represented in the reorganized Blue Grass league, which fans of six central Kentucky cities have under way. Mr. J. R. McKinney, lessee of the lot known as Greenland Park, just outside the city limits, where the colored teams played last summer, has given an option on use of the park for the league, and efforts are now being made to raise some $1,500 or $2,000 by subscription in order that that club may have something to start on, build a grandstand, and pay other necessary expenses that will be required before a team can be put in the field. Several local fans are expected to go to Paris Thursday evening for the meeting of the organizers of the league.

Over at Winchester the bugs have taken hold of things in good shape. The Sun had this about base ball there:

A meeting will be held in Paris Thursday night for the purpose of taking the initial steps toward forming a Blue Grass league of six cities—Winchester, Richmond, Mt. Sterling, Paris, Cynthiana and Lexington. Captain Neal, of the Louisville Colonels, will be present for the meeting at Paris, at which time it is expected that the president and other officers will be selected.

Our Sheriff

Few, if any counties in Kentucky, are fortunate enough to have as high class a man for sheriff as Elmer Deatherage. In a period when a crime wave is still sweeping the country and when there is a widespread disrespect for law, the sheriff, who is the chief law enforcement officer, is of the highest importance and the coming of Mr. Deatherage to this post at this time is a matter of congratulation to every citizen of the county. The zeal with which he and his subordinate officers have opened a campaign against violators of the law must be a source of satisfaction to the entire county—except the lawless element. With our courts functioning more vigorously and our juries willing to give the limit wherever it is possible, the outlook for a better county is excellent.

However, there is one thing yet that is needed and that is the support of every lawabiding citizen. Unconsciously, excellent people frequently become parties to the violation of law by giving encouragement to the lawless element. There is nothing that the bootlegger likes so much to hear as that "prohibition is a failure," and there are a lot of Richmond's citizens who are standing around giving this sort of encouragement to the bootlegger. Why not join the sheriff and the courts and do a man's part in enforcing the law? Prohibition is not a failure except in the fancy of those who would like to see it fail and under the leadership of our present sheriff's organization there is no reason why practically all violations should not be broken up.

Let Madison county give Mr. Deatherage the best support and the highest commendation in the heroic effort he is making for law enforcement.

GOLF CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED SOON

Many people in Richmond will be glad to know that there is a movement on foot to organize a golf club for Richmond and the community in the near future, and to establish a well equipped golf course. No American game has grown so rapidly in its popularity in recent years as golf. Formerly the game was confined largely to cities and resort centers, but it is now spreading into towns and villages and has become the most popular recreational game in the country. It is no longer a game of the rich alone but has been so organized as to be in reach of those of limited means.

Danville, Winchester, Middletown and others towns of this class near Richmond, are among those having recently established golf courses, while thousands of such towns throughout the country are now playing golf.

There are a number of golfers now in Richmond, who play on other courses away from home and these are expected to constitute the nucleus about which a club will be built. Such an organization would be of the greatest value to the young people of the community and especially to busy business men and women who have no other opportunity for recreation.

An early call for a meeting of those interested in such an effort is pending.

Names Is Names

(By Associated Press)

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 14—How parents follow world events—and other leads—in naming their children has been revealed here in the taking of the annual school census, just completed.

Some of the names which caused the census-takers to ask that they be repeated were:

Liberty Bond Williams; Chateau Thierry Rogers; Lyle Stockings; Aurora Borealis Bass; Merrily Grumbling; Hosa Lyre; Polly Parrott; Helen Warner; Service Waram; Melba Peach; Sterling Price; Europe Williams; Ananias Smith.

Others answered the question, "What shall we call him?" by affixing as given names Patrick Henry; Ethan Allen; George Washington; Abraham Lincoln; Woodrow Wilson and Warren Harding.

Mr. C. L. Edwards, of College Hill, who is engaged in the dairy business, believes he has found a way by which he can dispose of the calves at an early age and the cows will not give any trouble when taken away. A neighbor living near Mr. Edwards informed him if he would take the calves from their mothers in the old of the moon when the nights were dark and cloudy and feed the cows bran in the morning; let them drink water at noon, and swell up at night, they would not give him any trouble. All went well for 24 hours when a dozen cows came to his front gate. Such bawling aroused the whole village. Mr. Edwards says all he got out of the experiment was a haul and a good scolding from the neighbors.

Scientists Listen To Fly Walking Through Amplifier

New York, Feb. 15—Footsteps of a pesky housefly, booming out like thunder as he ambled forth leisurely across a piece of paper were heard today by scientists who tried the Bell Telephone Company's research laboratory, utilizing specially developed Rochelle salt crystals and an amplifier constructed by the Bell Company, engineers and scientists listened to the promenade of the fly. "Tomorrow," said the engineers, "we will try a trained flea on a piece of paper, and listen to him tumble. We haven't been able as Mr. Edison suggested on his birthday anniversary, to hear ants talk, but it is interesting to hear a molecule washing its face." The principle involved in the application of the salt crystals and the amplifier was first adopted during the war for submarine detection work.

Big Names in "The Sheik" Cast

Two really big names head the line cast which was assembled to play the many colorful roles in "The Sheik." George Melford production and Paramount's latest contribution to the theatre-going public, which will be at local playhouses Wednesday and Thursday. These are Agnes Ayres and Rudolph Valentino, Miss Ayres, whose earliest claim to fame was as the "O. Henry girl" in a series of pictures based on stories by that famous author, has since risen step by step, by dint of faultless work in such pictures as "Forbidden Fruit," and many others, until she has now become one of Paramount's leading feminine stars. Mr. Valentino gained widespread popularity by his portrayal of "Julio" in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Conquering Power," and "Camille." He is perhaps the most ideal type on the screen for the picturesque role of the Sheik, the Arabian desert tribal leader. The support is clever.

Like Clouds Across

There is one standard remedy which has shown the way out for nearly fifty years. The women who have "come back" through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound present an argument stronger than words could ever be.

New Era Of High Prices

New York, Feb. 15—A new era of soaring prices during 1922 was predicted today by William Maxwell, first vice president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in an address before the Edison Jobbers Association. Extraordinary expenditures by states and municipalities for public works and similar expenditures by the federal government and the soldier bonus plan, if adopted, would combine to bring out a "second period of inflation," he declared.

CASSIUS M. CLAY'S CANNON IN TENNESSEE

Big Gun That Guarded His Paper Office In Lexington Goes To Historical Society

One of the brass four-pounder cannon which Cassius M. Clay used with other pieces of ordnance in 1845 to defend the office of his abolition paper "The True American," in a brick building which extended through from Mill street to Cheapside in Lexington, has been presented to the Tennessee Historical Society, says the Leader.

Miss Laura Clay, daughter of "the Lion of White Hall," recalls that in her childhood one of the brass cannon was kept at the old home in Madison county but never saw the other and did not know that either was now in existence.

Expecting mob attacks from slaveholders and their sympathizers, the champion of abolition fortified his office, but the cannon were never fired. A committee visited his print shop, whose Mill street entrance was on the lot in the rear of the present Bassett building, boxed and shipped his printing material to Cincinnati. Mr. Clay sued and obtained a judgment for $2,500 from two members of the committee. He later revived this paper, publishing it in Cincinnati and Louisville and circulating it over Kentucky. In recent years workmen excavating on the site of his office found scattered type in the soil.

H. W. Doak, clerk of the United States Court at Nashville and formerly a newspaper man in Cincinnati, presented the cannon to the Tennessee Society. He received it from Colonel William G. Terrell, then connected with the Cincinnati Commercial, to whom Mr. Clay gave it. The cannon had an iron carriage which was destroyed when the Clarksville, Tenn., Democrats used it to fire salutes in honor of Cleveland's election in 1884. The old muzzle-loader is otherwise complete—body, breech, musket, tonhole, chase, cascabel and trunnions.

Tradition has it that silver dollars of Spanish origin were melted with the brass to give the metal the proper consistency. Of this, however, nothing but the romance remains, for nothing is left in the record to show the truth or imagination of it. For there was a record left by the man who originally purchased the strange old piece of artillery—and its purpose was for the defense of a free press.

Mr. Clay in his "Memoirs, Writings and Speeches," tells how in 1844 he determined to start a press of his own in the cause of abolition in Lexington. Of the subsequent events he wrote:

"The present generation can know nothing of the terror that the slave power inspired; but it may be faintly conceived when a profound minister of the Christian religion in South Carolina said that it were better for him, rather than to denounce slavery, to murder his own soul in hell!

"My prospectus was moderate enough—proposing nothing but constitutional methods in the overthrow of slavery; but when the first number of my paper appeared on June 3, 1845, the war was raging space all the lines. I selected for my office a brick building and lined the outside doors with sheet iron to prevent it being burned. I purchased two four-pounder cannon at Cincinnati and placed them, loaded with shot and nails, on a table breast high, had folding doors, secured with chains, which could open upon the mob and give play to my cannon. I furnished my office with Mexican lances and a limited number of guns. There were six or eight persons ready to defend me. If defeated, they were to escape through a trap door in the roof; and I had placed a keg of powder which I could set off and blow up the office and all the intruders, and this I would most certainly have done in case of the last extremity.

"The truth is, the mob was worse scared than I, and was utterly defeated in all its ends. I was not killed and The True American, later published in Cincinnati and edited by me in Lexington, increased in circulation in Kentucky and the Union generally until the time I went to the Mexican War."

WHAT SOME FISH ARE DRINKING NOW

(By Associated Press)

Louisville, Feb. 15—Verdigris, arsenic, alkali and other poisons; pepsin, ginger and adulterants of many kinds go into the "manufacture" of moonshine whisky and then is gulped down by the gullibles who believe the bootleggers are selling them "old stuff," says Dr. Vernon Robins, city chemist. Dr. Robins has found all these things and many others in specimens of captured moonshine whisky sent to him for analysis.

The liquor seldom lacks alcohol "kick," but whether the power is imparted by grain or denatured alcohol is a question for the doctor, and occasionally the coroner, to decide, the analysis shows.

Dr. Robins has analyzed several compounds offered for sale as "drinking" likker and has discovered the secrets of the medicinally inclined moonshiner. This class of moonshiner caters to that portion of the consuming public which doesn't care particularly for whisky, but likes to have a little "tonic" every once in a while. He gets a bit of pepsin, or ginger, or some other herb, as the tonic.

Alkali, it is said, is the more often used "kick" producer. Its kick, however, is a "bite." It is also used frequently to reduce the water contents of the wet goods.

Spoiled raisins, partly decayed grain or almost anything that will ferment, is brought into use, it is shown.

The manner of manufacture adds to the potent danger of moonshine whisky, according to prohibition authorities. Verdigris and arsenate of copper get into the moonshine from insubstantial copper containers, sometimes in quantities sufficient to make the product a deadly poison.

Improper distillation which fails to remove the fusil oil adds to the hazards of the bootleggers' customers.

HOW WEED PRICES INCREASED IN YEAR

(By Associated Press)

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 15—Prices for all kinds of tobacco in Kentucky show a decided increase for the month of January, 1922, as compared with prevailing prices a year ago, according to monthly report filed with Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. The 1921 sales were for the crop of the previous year while the prices paid last month were for the 1921 crop.

The report shows that in January of last year a total of 56,309,749 pounds were sold at an average price of $13.46 the hundred. Last month's report records 47,660,102 pounds sold for an average price of $18.30 the hundred.

Complete reports on the sale of burley tobacco are not available at this time as Commissioner Hanna gave the burley growers co-operative marketing association authority to wait until completely organized before submitting reports. The first report under the new organization will be submitted next month. Burley sales recorded so far are only for the independent warehouses.

Greatest advance in price was made on burley tobacco the crop of 1920 selling for an average in January of $14.27 and the 1921 crop selling for $21.82; in January of last year almost twice as much burley tobacco was sold as figures of this year show.

Comparative figures on the sale of all kinds of tobacco in January 1921 and 1922 follow: Burley—$8,924,774 pounds at $14.27; 27,293,470 pounds at $21.82.
